Guest Hosting Live on CNBC Africa from Cape Town, South Africa on February 7, 2008

BOCA RATON, FL and CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA – Robert Levitt, Chief Investment Officer of Levitt Capital Management, will guest co-host CNBC Africa from their Cape Town, South Africa studio live at 9 am local time, February 7, 2008.

Mr. Levitt has been traveling throughout Africa, including Nigeria, South Africa, Zambia and the Democratic Republic of Congo in search of investment opportunities for his private family clients from around the world.

According to Mr. Levitt, “We are pleased to have the opportunity to speak on TV in Africa about our investment thinking, and to let executives on the continent know that we are active investors in the country’s future.

“Our primary interests or themes at this time continue to be the global agribusiness, metals and mining, energy, infrastructure and developments affecting African consumers. Gold is one of our biggest positions currently, and we believe it will break $1000 per ounce. As far as agriculture, food makes up a significant amount of consumers budgets and prices are rising quickly.

“We have investments in African telecoms, mining companies and Nigerian banks and insurance companies. The Nigerian banks have been raising capital recently and they are ready to dramatically expand their lending activities. The African consumer is doing better and the cost of capital is below expected return.”

Levitt Capital Management LLC, headquartered in Boca Raton, Florida, with an office in Paris, is an SEC registered investment advisor founded in 2000 by Robert Levitt.
